To Whom it May Concern

Reference for Christopher Randrup – Randrup Parlour Builders Ltd

In 2012 Randrup Parlour Builders (RPB) Ltd tendered and won the contract to build a new dairy parlour, yards, feed pad, slurry lagoon and all associated infrastructure for the Sansaw Estate in Shropshire, United Kingdom.

We chose Randrup Parlour Builders for two reasons, first they were competitive on price but more importantly they have a proven track record of delivering parlours on time, to a high standard and within a clearly defined budget – this is a considerable skill, not readily available within the construction industry.

Chris Randrup has a deep and clear understanding of all the facets required to establish a dairy unit, in particular the importance of good cow flow. From the outset he was fundamental in assisting with the design and layout of the parlour and yards and this has resulted in a superb finished product, which allows staff to herd, milk and feed cows in a very efficient, effective and stress free manner.

Chris Randrup is supported by a team of skilled tradesmen who fully understand the requirements of dairy construction and are able to deliver under extreme circumstances. This was evidenced in 2012 when they completed the Sansaw Dairy despite the wettest summer for 100 years – having to contend with twice the normal summer rainfall.

Chris Randrup is absolutely passionate about what he does and will literally travel around the world to fix a problem. When we build our next dairy Chris Randrup will be the first person I call.
